

A message to all our IP Tech Customers:

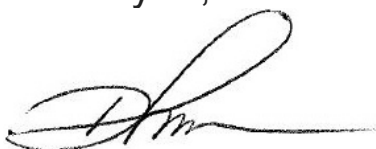

In-Position Technologies wishes everyone the best and hopes you are all staying safe and healthy. Our hearts go out to those who have been impacted by this virus across our global community. During these trying times, we are reminded of how quickly things can change and that we should take nothing for granted. While these are clearly unusual circumstances, we're committed to providing business as usual as much as we can.

In-Position Technologies supplies components and services to many customers, including those that produce essential medical devices. As a result, our intent is to remain open and operational during normal business hours and days of operations with only minor adjustments to non-essential personnel. We have our full staff of sales and engineering as well as customer service support available to help you with any needs you may have.

Much like you, we're continuously monitoring the evolution of this situation as we balance employee safety with business continuity. We are working closely with our suppliers to assure supply lines are still open and to date, we have not been impacted. Our major providers including Parker Hannifin, IMS, UR, etc. are all fully operational with no immediate impacts. We will continue to monitor conditions and notify customers immediately if things change.

Please be safe, both at work and at home and if there is anything IP Tech can do to help, we are here for you.

Thank you,

Dan Eick, Operations Manager
In-Position Technologies, LLC